

Hear what Ecovet ambassadors have to say about our fly spray for horses.

Jennifer McFall

Dragonfire Farm, California

Our facility is right next to a cow farm, so we get more than our fair share of flies! We've tried dozens on different fly sprays, and I've never found anything that works like Ecovet does. Their non-toxic fatty acid formula is completely unique to the fly control market, and it keeps our horses happy and comfortable so we can leave them outside longer, even in peak fly season!

facebook.com/dragonfirefarms

dragonfiresporthorses.com

https://youtu.be/hcrbb_WRLtU

Allison Springer

Allison Springer Eventing

I've tried so many different fly sprays over the years, and I've always struggled to find one that's really as effective as it's billed to be. But I've been so impressed by how efficient and effective Ecovet is at keeping the flies from biting, and even more impressed that it does so without using toxic chemicals! I can't believe no one has come up with this sooner. I've been recommending it to everyone I know!

facebook.com/allisonspringereventing

allisonspringer.com

<https://youtu.be/osC60dMrOis>

Bobby and Danica Meyerhoff

Meyerhoff Show Horses

It takes a really good fly spray to beat the flies down here in the North Carolina humidity, and Ecovet is as good as it gets! We have never seen this few flies around the barn at this time of year, and because of how long-lasting Ecovet is, we don't need to spray the horses nearly as often as we used to. Ecovet is a game changer!

facebook.com/meyerhoffshowhorses

meyerhoffshowhorses.com

<https://youtu.be/r4xjMAuowmI>

Lila Gendal

Event Rider, Vermont

"Ecovet offers the most effective fly spray on the market. I have been riding, competing and training horses for over fifteen years, and I've struggled finding a brand that actually works. I think I've tried every fly spray that's available, but nothing even compares to Ecovet fly spray! My favorite part about this particular spray is how easy it is to use, and how long lasting it is. I have a very sensitive skinned Connemara x, who gets giant welts on his belly from black flies, but with Ecovet, the flies and insects really do stay away! I highly recommend this fly spray because it's affordable, it smells really good, it's easy to use, the ingredients are natural, and it actually works!" – Lila Gendal

facebook.com/Lila-Gendal-Eventing-475134642595924

<https://youtu.be/l-MwwdsVxqg>

Tracey Hill
Dressage Trainer, Northern California

"I really can't believe how well this fly spray works, I've never had anything this effective!! ... It's truly a top of the line product!!"

Tracey-hill.com

https://youtu.be/TqsbXGvQGxY?list=PLvYGHpx6oB62ud_7cLcvOC_B10DuuZb3V

Hannah Croteau
Event Rider, NH

"We have the worst case of horse flies I have ever seen up here in Maine! Ecovet has been the only fly spray to make a difference for Leo! I now have a horse that can stay out happily all day in the peak of fly season! Even his stall is fly free with just a couple sprays! I have recommended it to all of my clients, it truly is remarkable and the best news? It's non-toxic! I recommend everyone give it a try and watch what a difference it will make for your horse!"- Hannah Croteau

Facebook: <https://www.facebook.com/hannah.croteau>

Instagram: @hmcddressage

<https://youtu.be/t7RQoa7t8P8>

Rebecca Barber
Event Rider, Charlottesville, VA

It is actually one of the few fly sprays that I feel comfortable using on a regular basis. I actually went through a period of time where I was reluctant to use any fly spray, due to having a horse with extremely sensitive skin. I love that it does not cause my mare to break out and I do not feel as though it dries out her skin.

I ride quite a few sensitive skinned horses and for awhile I have been somewhat cynical of many of the fly sprays on the market. I feel as though most of them either don't work or they dry out/irritate the horse's skin. Ecovet is the first fly spray that I can depend on. With Ecovet I have noticed a significant decrease in the number of flies, which means that my horses are quieter and happier both under saddle and in turnout. I couldn't be happier with Ecovet!

jubilee.equestrian@gmail.com

<https://youtu.be/wfnZX8lv4bs>

Jennifer Wooten
ICP Level 3 Instructor, Trinity Eventing, CA

trinityeventing.com

facebook.com/trinityeventing

<https://youtu.be/81ffenHQzIU>

Seija Samoylenko Eleazer Davis Farm

August is the height of fly season in eastern Massachusetts, and I am sure many places around the country. We're lucky, to a certain extent, because we only majorly suffer at Eleazer Davis Farm from a combination house flies and stable flies. Additionally, like many horse owners in New England, we're constantly struggling with ticks and related tick-borne illnesses. Roxanne recently came back from a very severe case of Lyme disease that sidelined her from competition. We know the best way to prevent tick borne illness is to keep the ticks off the horses, but that seems entirely laughable when you compare the size of a tick to the size of a horse!

I'd reached the point that I no longer purchased conventional insect sprays. Despite the myriad promises, I could no longer justify investing in something that didn't work. I felt like fly spray made me feel better than the horses! So, I switched over to making my own. This was significantly cheaper and worked just as well as the pricey other options (read: not at all). Still desperate for a new, scientific solution to pest control I recently received an 18 oz. bottle of Ecovet Fly Spray. I had heard some buzz (no pun intended) about Ecovet on social media, and I needed to try the product out for myself. Ecovet works by using a combination fatty acids to confuse the directional senses of insects. It does not contain toxic pesticides, and the company was developed/is owned by veterinarians, Dr. Tim John and Dr. Jim McCutchan.

Explainer Video: <https://youtu.be/1FVo9fxD1cE>

The first thing I noticed was the slender size of the bottle. It fits comfortably in my hand and can be easily stored on stall doors, in grooming kits, and in ringside backpacks. The sprayer head produces a very fine mist and allows you to have significant control over where you apply the product. Now, I must say, using Ecovet requires you changing your life-long habits around fly spray. No longer do you simply spray in a constant fury and angst. I recommend first watching the informative application video and then carefully reading the written instructions on the bottle before use.

How to Apply Video: https://youtu.be/0pII_EKXi4

My new fly control routine goes as follows. While I am working the horses, I leave a bottle of Ecovet outside the barn. When a horse comes in for work I remove all turnout gear, and carefully spray the key points described in the instruction video. As I mentioned before, the spray head is well-crafted and gives you much more control than traditional spray bottles. Next, I bring the horse into the barn, and let them settle in their stall before getting ready for work. When the horse comes out for work, they are noticeably quieter from stamping and discomfort. I found best results after three days of Ecovet. (Yes, I only spray my horses with fly spray once per day now!) Trust me, this product produces significantly better insect control than any other insecticide, natural, or homemade solution I have ever tried.

<https://www.facebook.com/pg/davisfarm>

<https://youtu.be/mpSRQQ1ccLM>